

THE SOCIAL LEPER.

A Pen Picture Applicable to A Local Editor.

A SNEAKING "MORAL MISTAKE"

He is known to his Associates as an Unmitigated Liar, etc., etc.

The following pen picture, taken from an exchange, so aptly fits the manipulator of the columns of the Tribune of this city that we reproduce it and leave it to the readers of that vile, slander-spreading sheet to judge if it is not a correct likeness:

"In the catalogue of vices there can be none more ruinous to the social comeliness than slander in its various forms. The original plan of the Tribune was not to have any slanderers born, and if they were accidentally created the statutes of the higher courts all read they should be put to death as soon as discovered. The Tribune in its immensity should not cherish any plan which in the remotest degree has a tendency to lengthen their lives or add to their happiness. The moralist theoretically heaps curses upon his head and all good people profess to shun him and his abominable associates. A cold in his infancy and immaturity can be repaid and forgiven for the greatest wrong. Murderers escape their wickedness by sudden absence and everlasting disgrace of memory and family.

Thieves that break in and rob one of his gold or treasures and end by arson, find at the hands of their fellow men a day of reckoning.

But this slanderer, this social leper, this lecherous parasite that creeps up from the mire and filth, and spits his slime upon the fair name of an innocent girl, this wily serpent, that laughs at her downfall and makes a mockery of honor still goes unpunished.

What he lacks in reason he makes up in cunning. He creates the circumstances of his story for a purpose and to gain his purposes and achieve his schemes, he willfully and maliciously lies. Being detected, like the wily serpent he carefully and cautiously coils around his victim and under cover of hypocrisy and dissimulation breathes poison into its life and hopes.

He is a moral mistake; see him as he sneaks along the street, and avoids those whose character he has questioned, and trembles lest he should meet that man whom he has injured. With a brazen bravado, he boastfully requests a public discussion of his veracity on a subject he should blush to speak of.

He is known to his associates as an unmitigated liar, a man without the rudiments of conscience or a principle of honor.

The slanderer. He may weigh coin for a government, attempt to gain the confidence of a landed and intelligent community, or to create for himself a competency. But he does not remain long in one place, his success like the adept in legerdemain depends upon his deceit. He has no laudable ambition. He spends his life in improvising petty schemes among those whom he has brought in contact with.

Words from Worthy Physicians.

Dr. B. R. Boyle, Wadley, Ga., says, "I consider Brown's Iron Bitters superior as a tonic to any preparation now in use."

Dr. W. J. Davis, Lewis, Iowa, says, "Brown's Iron Bitters gives the best of satisfaction to those who use it."

Dr. J. M. Klein, Walterboro, S. C., says, "Brown's Iron Bitters has given universal satisfaction."

Dr. S. H. Myers, Steubenville, W. Va., says, "I recommend Brown's Iron Bitters for general debility, loss of appetite and want of strength. These are only four physicians. We could as easily give similar testimony from four thousand, and space permit."

THE SECOND ACCORDEON.

The Gasping "Chronicle" Badly
Sat Down On.

SALT LAKE CITY, February 20, 1885.

To the Editor of THE HERALD.

A friend of mine, whose vocation of archaeologist and compiler of scrap-books brings him in daily contact with objects not apt to meet the public eye, informs me that there is a little paper calling itself the Salt Lake Evening Chronicle, published somewhere in the west, which has of late made a rather free use of my name, without leave or provocation from the owner, accusing me of all sorts of fearful things, from dabbling in poetry to editing newspapers and denouncing the "sock and buskin" of the mimic stage.

What it is I have done, that this parody and plagiarism on a jacksass should keep braying at me from behind the five-barred gate of its undiscoverable obscurity—unless it is something unusually meritorious of which I am unapprised, but which its capacious ears may have taken in from afar—I am quite at a loss to know. My friend tells me I am charged by it with the authorship of certain editorials in the Deseret News, one which the Tribune was given a black eye recently for accrediting to Mr. George A. Messers, and all of which, it may be said, were as elastic as that of the individual who seems eager to twine these unmerited laurels around my undeserving brow, I would only be too happy to claim. Unlike him, however, lying and coveting other men's deserts are not my forte or profession.

To give you some idea of the terrific onslaught of which I have for some time been made the unconscious target, I will quote you one of its opening sentences—a regular dynamic paralyser:

"Truth being, as it were, the indigenous inhabitant of the human mind, migrating from nowhere else, counterfeiters, however, occult, whether in science or religion, ought to have for lovers of truth no charms capable of overcoming the mind's guardian instinctive first revolt and abhorrence." Now, if anybody will open that and tell me what it is, he can have half of it. I am under the impression that somewhere in the Miltonic maze it is intimated that somebody has lied about something, but who or what it is, if not an editorial soliloquy of self-renunciation, I am as innocent of knowing, as its author seems to be of rhetoric, perspicuity or common sense.

Ordinarily I should feel inclined to have this appear in the same little sheet whose effusion of drivel called it forth, but up to this time the most diligent search, aided by a corps of special detectives, has failed to apprise me of its whereabouts. Besides, I am told it would not be able to print more than six lines at a time, and I do not wish to be looked upon, even for two short weeks, as a regular contributor to its columns.

Yours, therefore,

O. F. WHITNEY.

HOPE!

A young man named John Naves, living near here, had an eating cancer on his face, which had eaten away his nose part of his cheek, and extended up nearly to his eye. It was one of the most agonizing eating sores that I ever seen. His throat finally became involved to such an extent that he could only swallow liquid food. After using all the remedies without checking the ravage of the eating cancer, his general health was broken down, he was confined to his bed, and thought it to be only a question of time about his death from the cancer. I put him on Swift's Specific as a last resort, and he began to improve with the first dose. His general health improved at once, and rapidly; his throat got well; the ravages of the cancer were soon stopped; it began to heal around the edges; and after a few months' treatment with S. S. S. he has gotten entirely well. His face is all healed over with new flesh, and his general health is excellent. His recovery is wonderful.

Cancer for Many Years.

TIPTONVILLE, TENN., October 12, 1884.—Gentlemen: I am proud to inform you that S. S. S. was a very successful cure, and it has cured me. I had one. I am in fine health—not better for twenty years. I have gained twenty-five pounds since I commenced taking Swift's Specific.

R. S. BRADFORD.

Snatched from the Grave.

Mrs. Sarah E. Turner and her mother, Mrs. P. E. Bryan, for nineteen years residents of Humboldt, Tenn., follow the following statement as to the merits of Swift's Specific.

Mrs. Turner's case is well known in that community. She says:

"I was afflicted for two or three years with Eczema and Erysipelas combined. My whole system was broken down, my strength and appetite gone, and I became as helpless as a child, being lifted from place to place by my friends. I was treated by the best physicians in the community with iodine of Potash and the other usual remedies for such cases. I was given up to die by my friends. My sufferings were beyond description, and I had lost all hope of recovery. Last January I was induced to try Swift's Specific, having received a pamphlet from the company detailing its merits. The first half dozen bottles had the effect of bringing back hope to my heart, and the thought of being well again brought joy and gladness to the household. I have taken altogether 24 bottles. The sores have all healed up and disappeared, my strength has returned and I am able to do all kinds of house work. Swift's Specific, I honestly believe, snatched me from the grave, and I do not know how to be grateful enough for my recovery."

Mrs. SARAH E. TURNER.

I know that S. S. S. has saved my daughter's life. She was the most wretched-looking object that I ever saw when she commenced taking it, being perfectly black. I thank God that we ever heard of it. It has saved my child.
